It is getting to know the residents in this way and seeing the positive changes when they become involved in music, that makes my work here such a privilege".

Keeping Busy & Active In addition to our new fine dining experience, Amberley has implemented a diverse range of weekly events to keep residents engaged and entertained. From invigorating exercise classes on Mondays to soothing music therapy sessions on Meaningful Activities We took time to sit down with our Music Therapist, Debbie Dyer, who works for Nordoff & Robbins - the UK's largest independent music therapy charity, to get her thoughts on working with the residents here each Tuesday at Amberley. "When I work with residents, especially those with dementia, I look to incorporate their gestures and vocalisations into the music that we are making together. Sometimes, I start with a familiar song to initiate interaction, then improvise music around the resident's responses".

"The response to music therapy here has been overwhelmingly positive, from both residents and family members and the staff have been extremely supportive. Working with the residents, who have often experienced loss on many levels, can be
